Plane Carrier Lexington Lost

NAVY DISCLOSES BIG CRAFT SUNK IN CORAL FIGHT

Department Claims Toll Of Japanese Force Great During Conflict

35 SHIPS DOWN, CRIPPLED

Details Of Struggle In May Told; American Tanker, Destroyer Hit

WASHINGTON, June 12 — The Navy department today revealed details of the American naval victory over a Japanese naval force in the Coral sea battle by announcing that a total of at least 35 Nipponese warcraft was sunk or damaged.

Against this terrific damage the United States lost only three craft, the giant airplane carrier Lexington, the destroyer Sims and an auxiliary tanker.

Through a quirk of fate it was disclosed that the 33,000-ton Lexington was not a direct victim of the Coral sea battle but caught fire and exploded hours after the crew managed to save the vessel from attacking Japanese forces.

As the flagship of Rear Admiral A. W. Fitch, the Lexington was the principal target of attack by the Japanese in the Coral sea and was hit by two torpedoes and at least two bombs, it was reported.

After the initial attacks, however, the gallant crew of the carrier extinguished the fires and the Lexington steamed away from the battle area. At this point all the carrier's aircraft were recovered.

Hit By Explosion

Several hours later while the Lexington was making 12 knots and was not under attack, a terrific explosion shook the vessel from stem to stern. Reports said that at that time it became apparent that the Lexington was a doomed ship.

The explosion was believed to have been caused by gasoline vapors due to leaks in severed fuel lines.

The crew fought the blaze heroically for more than five hours, but the ship finally foundered when all of its machinery was put out of commission.

With the carrier ablaze throughout most of its length, Cap. F. C. Sherman, the commanding officer, ordered the crew to abandon ship. More than 90 percent of the

GERMANY FACING ACUTE FARM LABOR SHORTAGE

WASHINGTON, June 12—The agriculture department reported today that Germany faces an "acute" shortage of farm labor, despite drastic measures by the Nazis to recruit agricultural workers.

Reports from Europe indicate that there is a deficiency of 600,000 farm workers in Germany although compulsory farm labor has been instituted in the Reich, the department said.

U. S. Airmen Tell Story Of Tulagi

Assault On Enemy Island Touched Off Coral Sea Struggle In May

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The large air and naval battle in the Coral sea which resulted in the repulse of a Japanese invasion fleet moving southward toward Australia was preceded by a heavy assault by a United States Navy task force against the enemy base of Tulagi, port of Florida island in the Solomon group. It is disclosed for the first time in the following dispatch by Jack Singer, International News Service staff correspondent. It is the first eyewitness account of the first phase of the five-day Coral sea battle fought from May 4 through May 8.)

By JACK SINGER

PEARL HARBOR, June 12—The United States Pacific fleet delivered a stunning blow to Japanese bases in the southwest Pacific at the outset of the fierce Coral sea air and naval engagement which repulsed an attempt by the Japanese to invade Australia and cost the enemy a toll of 35 ships sunk or damaged, it was disclosed today.

In a surprise assault executed by carrier-borne planes on Tulagi harbor on the south side of Florida island in the Solomons, the hard hitting American airmen reduced the teeming harbor and its ships to a smoking ruin.

Nine Japanese ships were definitely sunk. These included five cruisers, two heavy and three light, and two destroyers and two large troop transports.

Two other ships were listed as possibly sunk and numerous small vessels were also destroyed.

Two Navy fliers, Lieut. Comdr. Joseph Taylor of Danville, Ill., and Lieut. Comdr. William Burch of Paducah, Ky., who led the devastating attack today supplied a graphic description of the assault which touched off the historic battle of the Coral sea.

Savagery Exhibited

The American task force struck with the same savagery and ferocity characteristic of its earlier attacks against the Japanese

MINISTER HELD UNDER BIG BOND FOR ESPIONAGE

PHILADELPHIA, June 12—Unable to raise $25,000 bail, the Rev. Kurt E. B. Molzahn today was held in Moyamensing prison for further hearing next Tuesday and eventual transfer to Hartford, Conn., for trial on espionage charges.

Molzahn, pastor of Old Zion Lutheran church in Philadelphia, was arrested on indictments for espionage conspiracy against him and four others including Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, former German-American Bund head.

U. S. Attorney Gerald A. Gleason requested the $25,000 bail for the minister "in view of the fact that the principal defendant (Kunze) cannot be found." During the arraignment, the Rev. Mr. Molzahn protested "I'm as innocent as any American can be."

ZANUCK, MOVIE MAGNATE, JOINS COMMANDO RAID

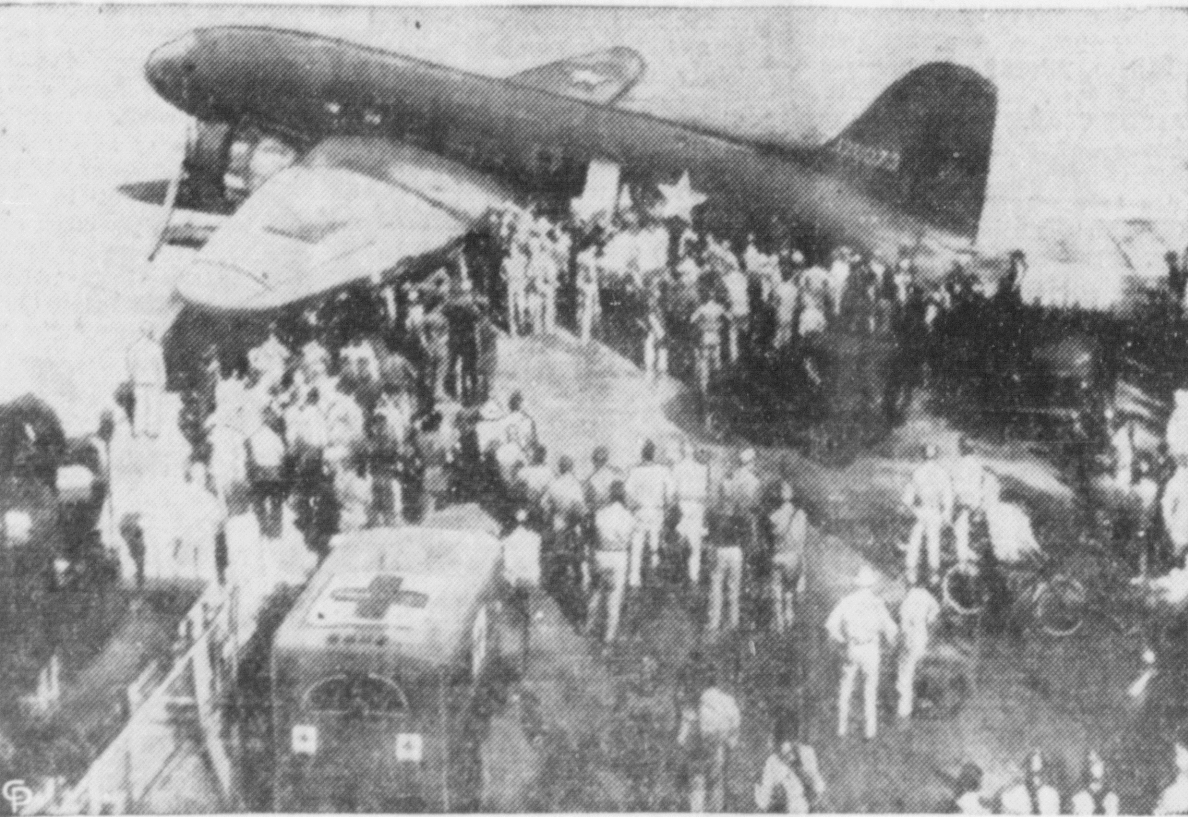

LONDON, June 12—Darryl Zanuck, motion picture producer, was identified today in reports from American sources as the colonel in the United States signal corps who accompanied British Commando forces on their recent raid on the occupied French coast near Boulogne.

It was disclosed that Col. Zanuck before concluding his visit to England participated in virtually every phase of Commando field training and is believed to have gone along on the raid to gain actual experience.

HEROES RETURN AFTER SMASHING JAPS AT MIDWAY

Fellow flyers who remained behind turn out to greet crews of United States Army Flying Fortresses that smashed the Japs at the battle of Midway island as the men return to Oahu field, Hawaii, in an Army transport plane, above. Flying Fortresses were credited with much of the destruction wreaked on the Jap fleet, which lost many ships and thousands of men. This picture was radioed from Hawaii to the mainland.

ROMMEL'S NEXT MOVE AWAITED

British In Libya Expect Attempt By Germans To Take El Gazala

CAIRO, June 12—British forces in Libya girded today for an expected early drive by axis forces to the northeast following the fall of Bir Hacheim, southern anchor of the desert battle front.

German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was believed preparing to strike northward again in an attempt to push back imperial defense lines running southward from the Mediterranean coast, with El Gazala, the northernmost defensive post as the immediate objective.

The fall of Bir Hacheim has relieved Rommel of the immediate threat to his lines of communication from the West and reduced the north-south British defense line to only about 25 miles. With Bir Hacheim still in their hands the British controlled a 60-mile front from the Mediterranean.

Bir Hacheim was taken by German and Italian forces yesterday after more than a dozen furious assaults against the defenders composed mainly of Free French and African troops.

HERBERT LOUIS IN CONTEST FOR ASSEMBLY POST

With Friday the final day for candidates to file petitions for nomination subject to the August primary, Pickaway county Republican party came forward with a candidate for representative to the General Assembly in the person of Herbert Louis, New Holland merchant.

Mr. Louis put his petition into circulation Thursday afternoon and expected to have it filled in time for presentation to the board before the 6 p. m. deadline.

Three Democrats seek nomination, including Ralph E. May, Harry Welch and Lawrence E. Goeller.

Two additional petitions were reported Friday for county commissioner, E. A. McCoy, Republican, and Tull M. Barnes, Democrat, submitting lists of names.

"YANK" OFF PRESS

NEW YORK, June 12—The first edition of the official Army newspaper "Yank" will be issued tomorrow, Saturday, which also marks the anniversary of the last edition of the 1918-19 "Stars and Stripes." "Yank" will be a 24-page tabloid, rotogravure and will be issued weekly exclusively for enlisted men of overseas U. S. forces. It will not be distributed in this country.

War Bulletins

CHUNGKING — American volunteer group pilots shot down seven and possibly eight out of 18 Japanese planes in a terrific dog-fight over Kweilin today.

BERLIN — (By Official German Wireless) — The Swedish liner Drottningholm, carrying axis nationals from the United States and South America, arrived in Lisbon today.

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — Buildings at the Japanese-held airbase at Rabaul, New Britain, were set afire during a heavy United Nations air raid, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today. A large four-engine Japanese flying boat was shot down in flames in the New Britain area by United Nations fliers, he said.

KARACHI, India—The duke of Gloucester, riding in company of American officials in an open United States Army car, today inspected American Army and Air Force formations at their base in India.

MADRID — Foreign Minister Serrano Suner of Spain was in Paris today, presumably for conferences with German authorities in occupied France. An official announcement that Suner had left for Paris gave no hint of the purpose of his visit.

VICHY — British occupational forces in Madagascar have been withdrawn from two towns in the northern area of the French island, the government disclosed today. Dispatches from Madagascar said British troops had retreated.

Six Air Base Workers Escape Serious Hurts Though Car Moves Barn

Four accidents in Pickaway county were reported Friday with several persons narrowly escaping serious injury.

At 6:55 p. m. Thursday a car driven by Booker Hughes, 25 South Seventh avenue, Chillicothe, went off the Circleville-Lockbourne road eight miles north of the city. Five other men were riding with Hughes, all of them working at the new air field at Lockbourne.

This accident was caused when Hughes swerved to miss a car driven by Virginia McCord, near Ashville, who was attempting to make a left hand turn into a driveway not knowing that the Hughes car was trying to pass her.

SOVIET ARMIES ON DEFENSIVE

Germans Hurl Big Forces At Sevastopol, Kharkov; Death's Toll Mounts

MOSCOW, June 12—Rampaging Nazi armies hammered persistently today at the Soviet naval base of Sevastopol and scored some advances in their new offensive on the Kharkov front.

Col. Gen. Fritz Von Mannstein was paying a high price in his attempt to knock out the Sevastopol base in the southwestern Crimea, losing 15,000 men in three days of action.

In addition, more than 60 German planes and 50 tanks were destroyed so far this week by the defenders of the Black Sea base.

Soviet military leaders admitted that the armies of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko were fighting defensive actions against advancing German tank and infantry units in the area of Kharkov, capital of the industrially and agriculturally rich Ukraine.

JAPS REPORTED TRYING TO END REICH-RED WAR

LONDON, June 12—Arrival in Ankara of Japan's Rome and Berlin military attaches has given rise to rumors that Japan is attempting to persuade Turkey to act as mediator in an effort to end the war between Germany and Russia, Reuters (British) news agency reported today.

Responsible quarters voiced skepticism of the report.

EVENTS SHOW BIG BLOWS AT AXIS NEARING

Any Possible Second Front Against Nazi Hordes Will Be Preceded By Air Raids With Even Greater Allied Strength

WASHINGTON, June 12—Paced by the rising tide of American war production, United States forces on land, sea and in the air today are moving with increasing speed in the direction of a world-wide offensive against Germany, Italy and Japan.

This was indicated strongly by a series of recent events and developments, but military experts asserted that American participation on a large scale in World War II probably would be spearheaded by growing aerial onslaughts on scattered fronts.

Highlight of the developing American offensive attitude was the White House announcement that President Roosevelt and Foreign Affairs Commissar V. M. Molotov of the Soviet Union have reached "a full understanding. . . with regard to the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

Disclosure that the agreement was reached in a series of conferences in Washington followed closely a series of meetings in London between high ranking American and British military and naval leaders on offensive war plans.

It also came close on the heels of the smashing American victory over the Japanese in the sea and aerial battle of Midway island, which relieved for the time being the Nipponese threat to Hawaii, Alaska, Australia and the Pacific coast.

To Follow Air Onslaught

While preparations point to American participation in a land offensive against Hitler's forces as soon as possible, it appears certain that any such move probably will be preceded by an aerial onslaught against German-occupied Europe.

This was indicated strongly several days ago when Lt. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army air forces, said that recent British mass bombing raids against Germany "were just starters to those which are to follow when U. S. and RAF fighters and bombers ride the skies as a team."

Any large offensive against Japan or Nipponese-occupied territory in the Pacific and the Orient also is likely to take the form, at first, of air raids of growing intensity as more planes move off the production lines.

From India, Australia and Hawaii, this offensive already is under way on a limited scale, with American bombers keeping up a fairly steady pounding against Japanese invasion bases, warships and communication lines.

Example Provided

Best example of America's growing aerial might was the stunning defeat of the powerful Nipponese invasion armada off Midway island. Reports from Hawaii indicated that a large part of the damage to Japanese warships was inflicted by Army bombers.

The Navy, however, also has been striking boldly at the Japanese for months despite the fact that many of its warships have been forced to spend considerable time conveying supplies and reinforcements.

Even while playing "watchdog" to convoys, naval units have found time to carry out the policy expressed recently by Admiral (Continued on Page Three)

HOCKING FARMER FACES DRAFT EVASION CHARGE

LOGAN, June 12—Hocking county's first resident to be arrested on a draft evasion charge was Alva Sifert, 34, a farmer, who the local draft board charged refused to report for induction. Sifert assertedly claimed he was "not of this world" and was a "teacher of theocracy."

Nazi Flyer Testifies

Lieutenant Krug

Lieut. Hans Peter Krug of the German Luftwaffe has been brought from a Canadian prison camp to Detroit to testify in the trial of Max Stephan, German-born Detroit tavern keeper, who is charged with treason for allegedly helping Krug to escape. The Nazi flyer is pictured above as he was led through the federal building in Detroit. He was recaptured in Texas after fleeing the prison camp.

EIGHT HEROINES OF PHILIPPINES BACK IN FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12—Back from the horror of war in the Philippines, eight American Army nurses—heroines who quietly suffered bomb, shot, shell, malaria and semi-starvation beside the battling men of Bataan and Corregidor—went feminine again today in a shopping spree through San Francisco stores.

The veterans, rescued by Navy airplanes from Corregidor a few days before the island fortress fell to the Japanese, are:

First-Lieut. Florence MacDonald of Brockton, Mass.; Second-Lieut. Dorothea Daley, Hamilton, Mo.; Second-Lieut. Juanita Redmond, Swansea, N. C.; Second-Lieut. Eunice Hatchett, Lockhart, Tex.; Second-Lieut. Mary Lohr, Johnston, Pa.; Second-Lieut. Gwin Lee, Boston, Mass.; Second-Lieut. Sue Gallagher, Petersburg, Va., and one young woman who requested her name be withheld for military reasons.

Reluctant to speak of the world's record of nursing service they helped create under primitive conditions, but showing the strain of their terrific ordeal, the nurses had one thought in common. It was expressed by Miss Hatchett.

"It was more than flesh and blood could stand," she said. "—even American flesh and blood. It doesn't seem possible. We prayed every day for the convoy we hoped was just over the horizon coming to relieve our boys."

1,000 SOLDIERS OF FREE FRANCE SLAIN IN LIBYA

This dispatch was sent from an enemy country, whose motive in releasing news is likely to be propaganda. Axis claims should be credited only when confirmed by American or Allied sources.

ROME, June 12 — (By Official Italian Wireless) — More than 1,000 Free French troops were killed when axis forces stormed and captured Bir Hacheim in the Libyan desert, the Italian high command claimed today.

Loss of an Italian destroyer by torpedo action in the Mediterranean was admitted while another destroyer struck a mine and sank. A new British air raid on the naval base at Taranto resulted in no damage or casualties, it was said.

FARMERS MUST ADD TO WHEAT STORAGE SPACE

Elmer Kruse, Chief Of AAA Cites Importance Of Facilities

LOANS DEPEND ON ACTION

Shipping Problem Another For Consideration In Ohio District

Farmers should prepare additional wheat storage facilities on their farms immediately or they may be forced to sell at "sacrifice prices," State AAA chairman Elmer Kruse declared Friday.

"Ohio, this year," said Kruse, "will have a 40,000,000 bushel wheat crop and we have five million bushels more wheat stored now than in a normal year."

"In addition, there is 5,000,000 bushels less storage space in terminal warehouses and 5,000,000 bushels less space in country elevators, resulting in a situation wherein the terminal warehouse and elevator operators can dictate what they will and will not store."

Terminal warehouses, Kruse said, are going to demand that wheat on which AAA loans have been extended have government permits. Under the present setup, he pointed out, only "free" wheat or that on which no loan has been made, can secure such permits.

Must Have Space

"Although the loan price in Ohio will be $1.24 per bushel this year, farmers cannot get such a loan if they do not have or cannot get storage space," Kruse explained.

"If such a condition comes about, buyers of wheat can set their own price and it is predicted the market price of wheat at harvest time will be $1 per bushel or less. However, most experts agree that the wheat prices will be up to the loan value by Fall or Winter."

The shipping situation also will create a problem, Kruse pointed out. In the past it has been the policy to store wheat on railroad cars for as long as three weeks or a month while they were being unloaded.

However, because of the urgent need of all railroad cars they will have to be unloaded immediately, flooding the warehouses and creating the need for still additional storage space, Kruse asserted.

"We have 15 men in the field at the present time, talking with farmers and urging them to build storage bins on their farms," the AAA chief said.

"In addition, we have supplied 1,000,000 bushels storage space at country elevators by building steel bins and are supplying prefabricated wooden storage bins for sale to farmers."

To Store 8,000,000

Last year, loans were secured on 6,000,000 of the 48,000,000 bushels produced in Ohio but this year at least 8,000,000 bushels will be stored on AAA loans, he predicted.

Kruse said that most country elevators, whose annual policy is to store wheat for farmers until the market price goes up, are refusing to contract for such storage and will not even guarantee they will purchase the farmers' wheat crop.

"Storage on the farm," said the AAA official, "seems to be the only way out of this difficult situation."

PHONE WORKERS GIVE C. D. EARLY GIFT OF WATCH

C. Des Early, manager of the Citizens Telephone company for the last four years, left Friday for Lexington, Ky. to start duty in the U. S. Army Signal Corps, and he carried with him a handsome wrist watch, gift of his associates in the telephone company.

Mr. Early enters service with the rank of second lieutenant.

He was presented a card Thursday by the Chamber of Commerce making him a director of the C. of C. for the duration. He endeavored to resign as a Chamber of Commerce director because he was leaving for service, but the organization declined the resignation retaining him on the board.

Mrs. Early and son will continue to live in Circleville.

No successor as manager has been named by the telephone company.

WITH LOCAL BOYS UNDER THE FLAG

Lester Wolford Arrives Safely At Foreign Location

Mr. and Mrs. John Wolford of Pickaway township have received a letter from their son, Lester, saying that he has arrived safely in a foreign port, although he was not permitted to tell where he is located. He mentioned the weather as being very fine. The letter was dated May 19.

Young Wolford is with the medical corps of the U. S. Army and left Camp Lee, Va., March 28. His last previous letter was written April 16.

Private First Class James E. Taylor, who is serving as a mechanic in a fighter squadron at France field, Panama Canal Zone, has been promoted to corporal. Taylor before entering the service made his home with Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Florence, formerly of Circleville township. The Florences now live in Junction City.

Donald Neal, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Neal of Scioto township, is engaged in war industry work in New York after receiving a medical discharge from the Army's paratroop corps. Young Neal had become an expert paratrooper, but suffered a back injury in an automobile accident when hitchhiking East after visiting with his parents.

Thirty Circleville and Pickaway county youths who have been home on furlough for the last week from Camp Blanding, Fla., were saying their goodbyes Friday in preparation to leave Saturday morning from Columbus. All are scheduled to report Sunday morning to resume their training.

Physical requirements for U. S. Naval Reserve have been lowered in many instances, men who previously failed to qualify as the result of defective teeth and eyes may now be accepted. The eye requirements have been lowered considerably, and suitable dental replacements are now acceptable for enlistment.

Lowering of these standards does not include the lowering of the requirements for candidates for officers' training. Men who failed physically in previous examinations may now contact the Navy Recruiting station and very likely will be accepted.

Midway Battle Stirs Demand For Independent American Air Force

By Drey Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON, June 12 — In Army-Navy circles, the Battle of Midway island was considered important not only as a turning point in the war, but as a new milestone in the demand for a separate, independent U. S. air force, not chained down by the battleship prejudices of the admirals.

There are two chief reasons for this renewed demand for a separate air corps at this time:

1. The Battle of Midway, and in fact all major U. S. victories so far, have been won primarily by the Army Air Corps. The Navy has been in command, issued the communications, and received most of the credit. But at Midway and the Coral sea, land based army airplanes turned the tide of victory.

2. Army airmen claim that despite the vital importance of bombing planes, the battleship still gets priority in materials over bombers.

Actually, construction of both bombers and battleships get top priority ratings. But when it comes to some of the materials going into bombers, it is another story. Army airmen say that certain materials for bombers get only a No. 4 rating, whereas all materials for battleships are rushed through at top speed. Yet most of the battleships now building will not be finished for two or three years; while bombers can be finished in a few weeks, and they can be dropping bombs on Germany a few days later.

This question, many military strategists feel, is one of the most fundamental faced by U. S. forces, and represents the difference between winning the war in 1942 with bombers, or winning it in 1944 with battleships.

And the Air Corps, they are convinced, cannot function if it is chained down to battleships.

AIR CORPS MET JAPS

To get a clear picture of the situation it is necessary to study the strategy of the Battle of Midway island. Admiral King, long one of the most air-minded admirals in the Navy, gave the tip-off to what happened when he said that it was not wise for the U. S. Navy to follow the Jap fleet to mop up.

"They still have a lot of shore-based air power," he explained, "as they found we had in the Coral Sea and at Midway."

This was another way of saying that U. S. battleships could not go too close to Japan's Marshall islands, with their land air bases, because warships cannot stand up under concentrated airplane attack.

It was also another way of saying that before the Jap fleet even got to Midway island it was met by a reception committee largely of U. S. Air Corps bombers which made it too uncomfortable to advance further. "Shore-based air power" is not the Navy, but the Army; plus, in this case, a small contingent of Marine Corps bombers.

Thus, reading between the lines of Admiral King's statement, it is safe speculation to piece together this picture of what happened at Midway island.

The Japanese were advancing with what Admiral King described as "the bulk" of their fleet. This was estimated at eight modern battleships and six airplane carriers, which left them only about six other battleships and one other carrier to guard their far-flung battle lines to Singapore and India. In other words, the Japs were putting most of their eggs in one basket and making a desperate stab at eventual invasion of the U. S. A.

PLANES RUSHED TO MIDWAY

Calculating our opposition to this huge armada, the Japs must have estimated that considering our losses at Pearl Harbor and our necessity of protecting the Atlantic, we could not match their battleship strength in the Pacific. They had photographs of the damage done at Pearl Harbor, and they knew we had used no battleships in the battles of the South Pacific. So probably they were able to make a fairly accurate estimate of what we could muster around Midway. And the tremendous size of their own force shows they did not want to take chances.

However, the Japs were not able to calculate that we would get wind of their movements in advance, and that the Army would concentrate so many of its big bombers on Midway island —

hungry for the Jap attack.

And reading between the lines of the Navy's statements, it is safe speculation that our air fleet, chiefly army bombers met the Jap ships 500 miles off Midway and never let them come within range of our battleships' big guns; also that the only U. S. naval vessels which really got into action were our submarines. (The Japs presumably scored their hits against us with airplanes or subs.)

In which case you can understand why the Air Corps is sore over having the Battle of Midway hailed as a great naval victory, with the Admirals issuing all the victorious announcements.

ADMIRALS RULE AIR

Indisputable fact, however, is that no navy today can go near a heavy concentration of land-based planes. The British super-dreadnaughts Prince of Wales and Repulse were not able to do it. The Jap battleship Haruna was not able to do it when we still had some air strength in the Philippines. And the powerful British fleet today is not able to go near Nazi air bases on the coast of Europe.

Yet today, the Air Corps around Midway is under Admiral Nimitz; the Air Corps around the Coral sea is under Admiral Leary; and the Air Corps around the Caribbean approaches to the Panama canal is under Admiral Hoover — none of whom ever has been trained in aviation.

POLITICAL-GO-ROUND

This is Mrs. Barclay Harding Warburton's idea of the way to further national unity: Addressing a meeting of the Pennsylvania State Republican committee, the wealthy, former National Committeewoman shrieked, "We've got three enemies to defeat—the Japs, the Germans and the Democrats. . . . So heavy has been the demand for copies of an article published by the Great Falls, Mont., News giving a detailed record of Senator Burt Wheeler's isolationist opposition that the newspaper has had to reprint it three times. . . . Representative Fred A. Hartley, New Jersey Old Guard, is having a tough fight for reelection. The AFL and CIO have joined forces to beat him, and in a joint letter have called on the Essex County GOP chairman to repudiate Hartley. . . . Representative Dan Reed, upstate New Yorker, is another Republican who is in trouble because of his isolationism. Opposition Republicans in his district are supporting Leon F. Roberts, able, young former mayor of Jamestown, against Reed.

NAVY DISCLOSES BIG CRAFT SUNK IN CORAL FIGHT

Department Claims Toll Of Japanese Force Great
During Conflict

Lexington's crew was saved by accompanying American warcraft. Sherman was the last man to leave the vessel and as his rescue ship pulled away a final blast on the carrier sent it to the bottom and rocked escorting ships hundreds of yards away.

Oddly enough, disclosure of the loss of the Lexington gave the complete lie to previous Japanese claims. The Japs claimed to have sunk the Lexington in January, and in their statements on the Coral sea action four months later didn't even mention the vessel which is now on the bottom of the Pacific as a result of that action.

Breaking its long silence concerning the battle the Navy said that by its secrecy it had set the stage for another striking air and naval victory in the conflict off Midway island last week.

The stunning Coral sea victory scored by the combined American, British and Australian force definitely thwarted the enemy in his attempt to gain control of the New Guinea-Solomon area and materially lessened the threat of invasion of Australia in the opinion of officers who waged the remarkable fight against the powerful Jap striking force.

Day-By-Day Story

In brief, here is how the battle progressed day-by-day:

May 2—Jap engine patrol planes bombed Australian and American air units at Tulagi and an enemy naval force was spotted approaching the base.

May 3—Under the pressure of enemy raids, U. S. and Australian forces evacuated Tulagi under a "scorched earth" policy, but saving many of their planes, one of which—a Catalina flying boat—was successfully towed by air to another United Nations base.

May 4—The Jap naval force approaching Tulagi caught by a United Nations task force under Rear Admiral Frank J. Fletcher, U.S.N., and when American torpedo and dive-bombing planes had completed the assault the toll of the enemy was:

Two light cruisers sunk.

One light cruiser beached and sunk in shallow water.

Three destroyers sunk.

One 20,000-ton transport sunk.

Two 9,000-ton transports sunk.

At least 6,000 Jap soldiers aboard the transport killed and drowned, with only two members of this sea-borne land force known to have been saved.

With the remnants of this force however, the Japs occupied Tulagi.

May 8—Jap reinforcements consisting of four aircraft carriers, six cruisers, 12 destroyers and numerous transports caught at sea by Admiral Fletcher's task force. When the smoke from the battle lifted, the toll on this Jap force was:

The aircraft carrier Rhukaku sunk.

The aircraft carrier Shokaku badly damaged.

The aircraft carrier Suikaku unhit, but lost all but 20 of its planes. (This carrier normally bases about 60 planes.)

The fourth aircraft carrier seriously damaged by high-altitude bombing.

Later in the day shore-based Jap "double Zero" fighters, German-made Messerschmitts and "109's" engaged carrier-based American planes with heavy losses to both sides. Damag inflicted by United Nations in this phase of the battle was heavier than that suffered because the allied forces were able to operate under overcast skies while the enemy was handicapped by an unlimited ceiling.

RETAILERS WILL DECIDE ISSUES WITH BALLOTS

Circleville merchants will ballot Saturday to determine closing hours during the Summer months.

Ballots to determine whether the stores will close Wednesday or Thursday afternoons, when the half holiday will begin and whether the merchants wish to stay open late Friday evening and close Saturday, July 4, were being sent to all merchants Friday afternoon.

These questionnaires will be returned Monday with a majority vote determining disposition of all the issues.

BANKER FALLS IN BAY

SARASOTA, Fla., June 12 — Seven persons were reported dead, two others were injured and another was missing as the result of the crash of a four-motored Army bomber in Sarasota bay early today. The craft was from the Sarasota air base. Names of the victims were not available immediately.

Ronald, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dowden of Circleville route 2, was taken to Berger hospital Thursday afternoon for treatment of a fractured right elbow. The injury was received in a fall.

Mrs. Scott Radcliff and baby girl were taken from Berger hospital Thursday evening in the Deffenbaugh invalid car to their home in Jackson township.

Mrs. Harry Hill of Park Place is a medical patient in Berger hospital, being admitted Thursday evening.

Children's day services will be conducted Sunday at 8:30 p. m. in the Tarlton Methodist church.

Happy Cannery Club

Washington township Happy Cannery Club met June 10 at the home of Mrs. Luella Stout, club adviser. This meeting was an all-day session with one business meeting in the morning and one in the afternoon. We prepared a luncheon consisting of Johnnycakes, peas, potato salad, strawberries, cookies and iced tea. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in canning strawberries.

Discussion was held on the subject of community work. We decided to have a skating party at the Laurelville Skating rink the evening of June 29. The session was adjourned until July 8.

ROTARY HEARS SPLENDID TALK OF ALASKA REGION

Carl Hunter, North Pickaway street, gave the address to Circleville Rotarians at their meeting Thursday discussing the possession of Alaska. Each month the club asks a member to discuss some territory of the United States in respect to current events. Mr. Hunter went into detail on the background of the country and then brought up the interesting topics of size, population, resources and the role it is playing in present conflicts.

Several interesting facts disclosed about the northern territory were its enormous size and small population which equals the combined residents of Pickaway and Fairfield counties. Chief industries include fisheries, mines and lumbering, according to the report given to the club. At present the territory contains some 110 American airports and numerous other bases that are of extreme importance to the war against Japan.

In closing Mr. Hunter pointed out that the Aleutian islands, on the tip of Alaska, could either be a gun pointing toward Japan or a stepping stone for Japanese aggression into the United States.

EVENTS SHOW BIG BLOWS AT AXIS NEARING

Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet, "to take every opportunity to harass and damage the enemy while building soundly for his ultimate defeat."

The Navy's offensive against Japan actually began late in January when task forces of the Pacific fleet smashed enemy installations on the former American island of Wake and Nippon's Marshall and Gilbert islands. In the latter raid, 16 enemy ships and auxiliary vessels were sunk and damaged.

These were followed in March by smashes at Marcus Island, less than 1,000 miles from Japan, and a surprise blow at Nipponese invasion ships and installations in the New Guinea area. Japan's most serious setback at the hands of the Navy, supported by Army air units, came early in May in the Coral sea battle and the recent Midway engagement.

U. S. Airmen Tell Story Of Tulagi

in the Gilbert and Marshall islands when they smashed Tulagi harbor, 1,000 miles northeast of Australia.

"On board our carrier we had never heard of the place," Burch related, "until late one night word was passed over the loud speaker to 'prepare all squadrons for an attack on ships in Tulagi harbor at dawn.'"

"This was a complete surprise. Our task force had been hunting the enemy in the Coral sea. We studied maps and went over instructions and long before dawn were ready and anxious to take off."

"It was a muggy tropical morning but the sky was blue and clear when we roared away on our mission of destruction. Every plane was in position and carrying a full load of torpedoes and bombs when we sighted the neat little harbor."

"We didn't know what to expect. But there far below we saw the harbor filled with warships and transports. From our great height the harbor was spread out in miniature."

"I remember thinking that the scene reminded me of toy boats in a bath tub. As I peered out and prepared to dive I shouted into the radio phone 'let's get the yellow...!'"

At this juncture Taylor took up the stirring story.

"I figured the Marquis of Queensbury rules were out so I said to Bill 'you hit 'em high and I'll hit 'em low.'"

"From then on it was every man for himself. One thing I remember clearly as the dive bombers pushed over in screaming dives is that each pilot was yelling into his radio phone. Some were cursing but most were shrieking 'Remember Pearl Harbor.'"

Just Went To Work

"As soon as I saw what ships were in the harbor I instructed the pilots which ones to hit. There was no time for detailed assignments. We just went to work with our torpedoes and bombs."

"The Japs weren't exactly caught flat-footed but got up no anti aircraft fire until the attack had started. By that time it was too late."

Taylor paused and Burch resumed the account of the fray. "When the attack was completed the place looked like it had been hit by an earthquake. The harbor was filled with sunken, burning ships and a few which managed to crawl to the beach to keep from sinking."

"White and orange sheets of flame licked the sky and some smoke billowed into the air from dozens of fires."

"Nine ships were definitely sunk and possibly 11."

Hero Of Midway Fight Praises U. S. Teamwork

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12 —A modest hero who got his first taste of actual combat by leading the American flying fortress squadron that sank two Japanese carriers and blasted other enemy ships in the battle of Midway, was en route to Washington today after his surprise arrival in San Francisco.

He is Lieut. Col. Walter C. Sweeney, Jr., 33, whose unheralded trip from the Pacific war zone amazed family and friends as much as his exploits they still were reading about when he calmly strolled into his San Francisco home.

He was greeted by his father, Maj. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney, recently recalled from retirement to head California's state guard. The general, who himself wears the Distinguished Service Medal awarded for gallantry in the Argonne, did not stand on rank in welcoming his famous son.

"You've come back quite a hero," the proud general said.

Very embarrassed, Colonel Sweeney replied:

"Aw, take it easy dad." He smiled at his mother and sister standing by. "I've got to live with these people."

The young flier refused to take any personal credit for the smashing victory achieved by his squadron and praised the "great teamwork of all the services, in the air and on the sea."

"Man, how it paid off!" he said fervently.

He emphasized that he had nothing to say for publication beyond the fact that cooperation "and lots of it" was responsible for the success of U. S. forces in sending the Japanese fleet reeling back in utter defeat during last week's battle in mid-Pacific.

He deftly parried all attempts to have him relate his personal experiences in the battle of Midway.

"Nobody individually claims anything," Col. Sweeney said. "It was all magnificent team play. It was one of the most magnificent exhibitions I have ever seen. All were eager to get over the targets and get a crack at them."

Although the town was not mentioned it was believed possible that it was Rzhev, vital northern railway town.

SIX AIR BASE

Laurelville route two, struck the rear of an auto driven by Charles Francis of Ashland.

Both drivers gave conflicting reports of the accident one stating that Francis was parked on the road with no lights and the other contending that Thompson was forced into the Francis car by an automobile approaching from the opposite direction.

The front end of the Thompson car was demolished.

A third car was brought into a Circleville garage Friday after it was found on the Walnut Creek pike where it had hit a culvert. The car was wrecked but no one received injuries according to reports.

A heavy rainfall Thursday evening made driving on most roads a hazardous undertaking.

Fourth accident in the last 24 hours was investigated by Bryan Custer, sheriff's deputy, Friday in Ashville. The accident happened at 5 a. m. when the steering apparatus of a car driven by Harold Herron, Circleville route three, failed, causing the car to careen over the curb on East Main street in the village.

After leaving the street the auto struck three trees, cutting one large maple in two and badly damaging the others. After hitting the trees the car turned over.

Herron received minor bruises on the knees and was released after treatment by a physician.

FRANKLIN THOMAS DIES AT 77; RITES SATURDAY

Franklin Thomas, 77, native of Pickaway county and a resident of Circleville nearly all his life, died Thursday at 10:30 p. m. in Berger hospital where he had been a patient since May 18. Mr. Thomas underwent amputation of his left leg and died as a result of shock and complications.

He lived at 129 Logan street. He was born February 20, 1865, a son of Franklin and Rebecca Glaze Thomas. He married Etta Belle Johnson on March 12, 1892, his widow surviving. A brother, Thomas Thomas of Circleville, and two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Bartley of Circleville and Mrs. Florence Wright of Columbus, also survive.

The funeral will be Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the M. S. Rinehart funeral home, the Rev. Orville Gibbs officiating, with burial in Forest cemetery.

POEM - READING YOUTH SHOOTS STEPFATHER, 37

COLUMBUS, June 12—A 16-year-old poem-reading youth, who calmly shot his stepfather to death in an Ohio State university classroom, underwent examination by psychiatrists today after confessing he fired the fatal shot "in a daze."

"I was like a person in a room with four doors and I had to use one of the doors to escape," Steadman Thompson told police while hugging a thick leather-bound copy of Byron's poems.

The father-in-law, Dr. Charles R. Owens, 37, was slain as he sat alone in a chemistry laboratory yesterday. Coroner Edward E. Smith said the youth admitted finding an old revolver in the attic of his home and, after putting it in working condition, journeying to the university campus to slay his step-father.

"Nobody liked me... everybody mistreated me... I didn't have any friends," the 208-pound youth told the coroner. "Everything is in kind of a fog now. I don't remember much about how it happened. I thought about killing him. I thought about doing it Tuesday and I've had dreams about doing it, too."

The boy's father, Arthur Thompson, died when his son was an infant.

In 1871 occurred the Pestigo fire in Wisconsin, one of the greatest United States forest fires in history, after a three months' drought. Six counties were burned over, and over 1,000 lives lost, thousands crippled and 3,000 beggared.

Young Thompson was found wandering near the chemistry building, unconcerned, shortly after the slaying.

To the coroner and arresting officers, the youth related when questioned, a stream of invective against Dr. Owens, calling him "a rat who was alienating my mother's affection."

Domestic Relations court, which will have disposition of the case, ordered a psychiatrist to examine the boy.

An honor student at Grandview high school, Thompson told police he spent most of his time reading and studying. School officials described him as one of their most able students with one of the highest I. Q.'s on record there.

Dr. Owens was termed by associates as a "quiet, capable and very likeable man." He was married to the boy's mother, the former Elizabeth Free Thompson, on November 4, 1939, the same year he became a full time instructor in the chemical engineering department at Ohio State. Previously, he had served as a part-time instructor and as a teacher at Purdue university.

Sol Schepps, 46, a tailor, said she had seemed very fond of the child.

LANCASTER JAYCEES WILL AID IN RUBBER CAMPAIGN

LANCASTER, June 12 — Lancaster Junior Chamber of Commerce today announced its intentions to aid the city in its collection of rubber under the national program that will get under way next week. C. Floyd Wolf, president of the group, received word Thursday from Mayor William Belhorn that the club's proposed participation in the drive was very welcome news and that as soon as plans were made the chamber would be notified.

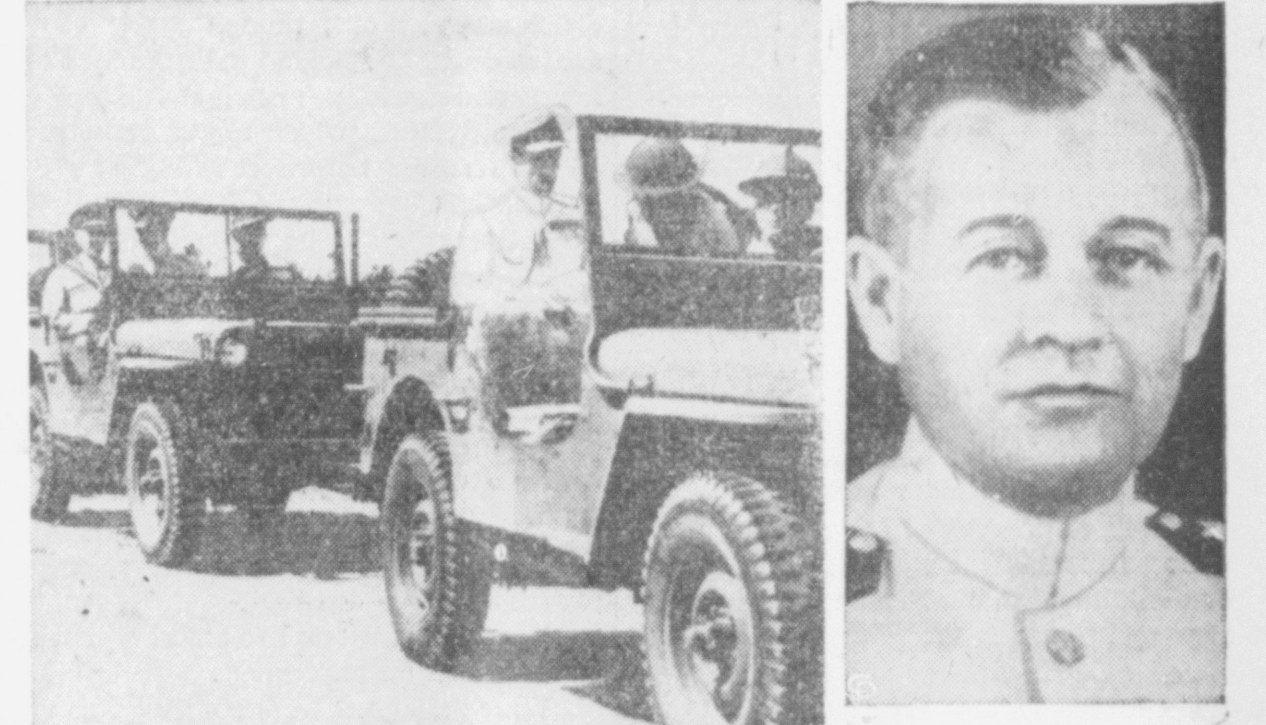

No instructions have been received yet on the government's plan for salvaging scrap rubber, but it may be expected that the club will play the important role in the collection.

America's forthcoming scrap rubber drive will undoubtedly result in a collection totaling millions of pounds. The old rubber will be sent to a reclaiming plant where it will be finely ground by machines and placed in flatcars (left). Then it will be heated and mixed and forced through a fine screen to remove dirt and foreign matter. The rubber looks like spaghetti (right) when it leaves this machine. In the final step it is mixed with crude rubber and the reclamation is complete.

TO BOND BUYERS

ALL: Everyone, I feel certain, was pleased to read that Pickaway county had passed its May War Bond and Stamp quota by about $10,000. All of us knew that the goal would be passed, at least we all hoped that it would because Pickaway county has an excellent record where War Bond, Liberty Loan and War Chest campaigns are concerned. It would be a disastrous thing for our community, or any other, to let our boys down. After all, they are fighting a great struggle for us, and we should give them all the support we possibly can on the home front. But, despite the success of the campaign, there are many folk who are not contributing as they should to the war effort by purchasing War Bonds and Stamps. Many who can scarcely afford to do so are buying bonds and stamps, while some who can afford to put out much money for them are not doing so. I hope that these persons one day realize what success in this campaign means to all of us. Another big quota has been assigned to the county for June, this one being more than $40,000. Everyone should do his part to put the drive over the top. More and more are employees of stores, factories and other industries signing blanket agreements to have 10 percent of their pay checks deducted for War Bonds and Stamps. How about you and your organization?

TO DEFENSE COUNCIL

FOLK: The other day you announced that a series of Town Meetings for War would be started soon, possibly in early July, and I for one wish to congratulate you for making this move. Town meeting is a splendid thing, a true institution of democracy, and I hope that Circleville and Pickaway county folk go for the meetings in the same manner as the populace of other cities has done. Town meetings in many parts of the country attract capacity crowds, and develop much interesting comment and discussion on various problems of the day. On the shoulders of Mayor Ben H. Gordon, Forrest Short, I. W. Kinsey and Dan McClain is falling an important task, because it is up to them, as a committee of the Defense Council, to plan the Town Meetings for War and to assure their success. The work done by this committee will go a long way toward determining the success of the Town Meetings for War. The whole idea is a splendid one, and I am pleased that the Defense Council, which has been working hard to awaken Circleville folk to the

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

RESENTMENT is developing very furiously against folk who mention certain precautions that ought, they think, to be taken right now, to prevent an awful economic state of affairs before many years after the war is over.

Charles P. Stewart

The argument is that letting the Axis do the thing for us is the thing for us to concentrate on today, to the absolute exclusion of any other present or future consideration. We must not even waste a thought in an alternative direction, the critics say—at best it's frivolous and at worst it's disloyal. Who cares, they ask, what happens to us later, if we while the daylight out of that Axis, in the shortest order possible?

Well, there's a lot to be said in favor of making a jigtime job of it. The longer it takes, the nearer the subsequent situation will be—the one the economists worry about.

It won't pay this latter group to let the conduct string out, with a view of taking some of the curse off it when it gets here, because it probably'll be still uglier if it's delayed.

A Bit of Foresight

Nevertheless, it seems to me that there's nothing unpatriotic in exercising a modicum of foresight.

A guy who needs to have a few germs of judgment on the subject should have had a bit of experience with the 1914-18 war. He's aware that various steps could have been taken then to avert the fearful business crash that followed it. The current younger generation is too juvenile to have sensed it. They were little kids, while their seniors were ransacking with post-war bankruptcy. The oldsters are the chaps who remember it. They're not yet old enough to be all dead, but they're old enough to recall what happened to 'em, and WHY it happened to 'em, and not to want to have it happen to 'em again, if they can help it.

Inflation! That's what they're all jittery about. The rampant birds don't want to be inflated, theoretically, but they never had it actually happen to 'em. The elderly class have been through it, and one dose of it was sufficient for 'em. The young crowd merely has it EXPLAINED to 'em. Present John A. Reilly of the fact that a war is being waged, should be the organization to get the ball rolling. I await further developments in the program with much interest.

TO MOTORISTS

DRIVERS: In addition to your many other worries concerning gasoline rationing, lack of a tire supply, and other problems of more or less importance comes time to buy new automobile use tax stamps which put you back five simoleons. They are obtainable at Uncle Sam's postoffice, and I'd suggest that you get them as early as possible to avoid a certain rush. Every automobile must have one before July 1. When use tax stamps were sold not so long ago for part of the year many motorists were victimized by thieves who took the stamps and put their own names on them. Police were called numerous times to do something about it, but there wasn't anything they could do. When you buy your new tag why not be certain that your name is written across it in ink and that it is firmly pasted to your car's windshield. Precautions such as these may save you another five spot.

TO HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

OFFICIALS: Elimination of the old bridge over Laurel creek at the entrance to Laurelville is a splendid project, one that I am surprised you have not undertaken long before this. The old wooden bridge has been an eyesore to the village, and a menace to autoists for a good many years, even though there might have been some sentiment connected with it. The construction job will take some time and will mean some detouring especially for persons who like to visit the Hocking county scenic areas, but in the long run the project will be a splendid one. Many recall how persons living west of Circleville were out of sorts during construction of the new road west of the Scioto. But all are pleased now with the improvement. Another project that I wish you would take some action on is elimination of the old bridge over Walnut creek just north of the Franklin county line. It, too, is a menace on one of Ohio's busiest highways.

TO FARMERS

FRIENDS: With Summer the peak accident season on the farm, warnings are being issued daily about some things to do and some not to do during the sweltering period. Twenty-one thousand men of the soil are killed accidentally each year, farm officials point out, though many of the deaths could be avoided with practice of a few sound safety principals. Here are some suggestions which might be helpful:

Stop motor before coupling any belt or draw bar.

Let tractor or implement stop completely before dismounting.

Use care in cranking; double check to see that tractor is not in gear.

Keep tractor or implement speed low, danger of overturning increases by four times as implement speed doubles.

Keep away from moving belts or pulleys.

Never stand in front of an implement, especially horse drawn.

Never trust a team to stand still when you work on an implement.

Watch silage drivers carefully, as well as cutters.

Take no chances with powerful machinery.

DIET AND HEALTH

Tests for Teeth Condition May Benefit General Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE BEEN trying to put down on paper, not for the readers of this column, but for a general medical group, an outline of the examination of the teeth so far as they have to do with the general health of the body—in the first place, what diseased conditions of the body do diseased teeth cause and second, in what way do general diseases of the body affect the teeth unfavorably?

I have been very much interested in looking over some of the examinations given by the Army Medical Board; to see what a proportionate amount of space was devoted to the examination of the teeth and the great care that the Army Board takes in making these records.

Light on General Health

I concluded after some study that an examination of the teeth, both by inspection and by the X-ray method, throw light on the general health of the body.

The general shape, spacing and structure of the teeth indicate such things as general infection (Hutchinson's teeth), diabetes, developmental disorders of the body such as might occur in gigantism or pituitary disease. These, however, are rare.

Malocclusion, loose bridgework and bad plates, all suggest incomplete mastication and consequent disturbances of the digestion and nutrition. The Army Boards, I find, stress this a good deal but in my experience, while it seems logical to think that they ought to cause bad health, they seldom interfere with the digestion and nutrition at all.

In fact, from observation of certain colleagues of mine I have almost come to the conclusion that the teeth are unnecessary. These men have complete upper and lower plates which they will remove at meal time, using them entirely for esthetic purposes. They munch and mumble their food with bare gums and in the time during which they have been doing this, they have none of them had the slightest attack of indigestion of any kind and have gained on an average of fifty pounds apiece. I gather therefore that the importance of proper occlusion of the teeth has been somewhat overdone.

Unrupted Teeth

Unrupted teeth, crowded teeth and removal of teeth which interfere with the functions of the body; these conditions have repeatedly been described as the cause of headache, face ache and neuralgia. I have the greatest amount of skepticism that crowded teeth or unrupted teeth ever cause these symptoms. I believe so because in the first place, people who have headaches of this kind almost always have a neurotic background, and in the second place, a great many people have the same condition without having any tooth trouble. In the third place, when the tooth trouble is corrected the symptoms do not disappear in most cases. The public has been oversold on this idea.

Partial Deafness

However, there is one condition described by Dr. James Costen, of St. Louis, in which owing to a removal of too many lower teeth, especially back teeth, the jaw joint slips out of place and closes up the Eustachian tube to the ear, causing partial deafness, attacks of vertigo, neuralgia and roaring of the ears. This is a syndrome which is not sufficiently well known either to dentists or to ear men, and is a perfectly definite and clear-cut symptom complex which responds to treatment by the proper fitting of plates, in an almost magical manner.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. M. C.: I am very fond of fish and eat quite a lot of it. I have read that it is very bad for the kidneys. I never eat fresh water fish, only sea fish.

Answer: There is nothing about either fresh water fish or sea fish that is bad for the kidneys.

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

MARG HAD said that Tibby looked pale and interesting, as one should, when in a hospital. Tibby was not sure as to the "interesting" part, but she certainly looked pale enough. She tried rubbing a little rouge into her cheeks and she put on the pretty shell pink jacket that Steena had brought her. She was expecting Wayne and so she must make some effort to sort of "perk" up. She would have to try to put on a brave exterior, since her interior felt so jittery.

When he finally came, after what seemed hours of waiting, not because of eagerness, but because of her anxiety, Tibby felt more ashamed than ever to think she had dreaded Wayne's return as she had.

As Marg had predicted, he did not seem concerned with anything as long as he found Tibby safe and sound. He did not even reproach her for having taken up the silver ship without asking him and in his absence. He did not so much as refer to it until Tibby herself brought it up.

"It was my fault," Tibby said, with her customary honesty. "I was perfect flying weather, Wayne. The ship was in perfect condition. I don't know what happened, even—but I do know that it was something within me that went wrong, that I did not wake up until it was too late."

That was the only explanation Tibby could give. It had been something within herself. She should have been able to have righted the ship after all Wayne's patient, expert teaching. Nothing had gone wrong with the motors. There had not been any disturbance in wind or altitude. She had been unstrung, upset; she had not been sleeping well, either. She had not been in shape, in other words, to pilot the silver ship.

Wayne said, his steel gray eyes kind and understanding, "You're not to think of that. As long as you are safe, my dear, nothing else is of any consequence. As for the ship, I had it heavily insured, so please do not fret about it."

But there was something more that she must tell him, honestly, without evasion. That was Tibby's way. It was something harder to say than that admission of guilt, yet she must say it. "There's something else," she said, her brown eyes meeting his, "something I'm even sorer about. Wayne—yet something I must tell you."

"Surely it will keep!" Humor lurked about his handsome mouth, his eyes smiled back into hers. "Do you like roses? I told them, as soon as I got the wire about the accident, to send all they had and to keep on sending them. They look more like you now than ever, my sweet. Such delicate buds, their tint matching that soft flush in your cheeks, the shade of that frilly jacket you're wearing." "They're lovely," Tibby said, thanking him. But they had been like the pearl ring, too magnificent, too abundant. They had literally filled the small, bare room, stifling it with their heavy, heavy fragrance, so that, at night, Tibby had had to request the nurse to remove them.

Besides, although she could not say this to Wayne, she was not Tibby's favorite flower. She liked something less cultivated, more natural, like mixed perennials, or the small bunch of violets that had come from Tommy. Everyone had been so thoughtful—the jacket from Steena, a basket of fruit from the more practical-minded Marg, a beautiful plant from the girls she had worked with—even a card from Miss Picklepus.

"I'm afraid this won't keep," Tibby said, returning to the task she had set herself. She had gone over and over the way she must tell him, but there was only one way. It might not seem the best, but it really was the kindest. "I can't marry you, Wayne," Tibby said simply, directly, as she had said, once before, that she would. "I thought I could, or I wouldn't have let you think I was going to. I thought I cared for you enough, but I find that I was mistaken."

"I told you it would keep, Wayne said. His tone was light, but she had not missed the look that had swept over his face. It had not been surprise. He had been afraid that it would be something like this that she had to tell him. "You are upset now, my dear," he told her. "Not yet yourself. You can't be sure of what you want. If it will help, I promise not to try to hurry you."

He had intended to hurry her as much as he could, for he had known that would be his only chance. He had known all along that he might not be able to win this girl. Not with such gifts as a silver ship, a magnificent pearl. Not though he gave her all his riches.

Tibby shook her head, but her gaze did not drop before his. "I'm sorry," she said again. "But that wouldn't help. Not now. You see, there is someone else. That's how I know. That's why I am so sure." She had wondered how one could be sure. Now she knew. When love really came, when the heart finally spoke, there could not be the slightest doubt.

Wayne Courtright knew that, too, but, unlike Tibby, so inexperienced, he had known this all along. He had known all the time that she did not love him, but he had wanted her anyway, this young girl who was his lost country. He had been willing to take the risk that she might never come to care as he did. He had put up a good fight, but he was also a good loser.

He said, "If that's the way it is, my dear, it's all right." His gray eyes still smiled into hers. "That isn't your fault, either. You must not try to take the blame or feel so sorry." He had thought he could always make every ending be the one he wanted. At least he could make this one as gallant, as brave as the heart of this girl whom he would always go on loving. Not that Wayne would let this wreck his life, or break his heart. His life was too full; his heart too brittle, but he would not forget her, the sweetness of this love—not in ten or in twenty years. He would, perhaps, think of her—her soft brown eyes with their shining stars, the tremulous curve of her lips—when he lay dying. It would be a lovely memory, one well worth having treasured.

"You're very kind," Tibby said. She knew she ought to say more than that. It was not nearly enough for how kind he was. She need not have been afraid to tell him. She need not have dreaded his return. He still, in a way, was that strange who sometimes stood between them. He still was that someone apart, exciting and different.

"There's something I'd like you to do for me," she said shyly, yet daringly, too. It was daring, to ask this of him. It might not work out, but it was worth this effort. She could not say goodbye to him without asking it.

He told her she knew that she had only to ask, and he would do anything—he could for her. He knew, too, that this was goodbye. He was glad if there was something she wished to ask of him.

"I gave my ring to Steena," Tibby said, holding out her hand to prove its absence, a hand that looked as it should now, unburdened with such an incongruous ornament. "I asked her to keep it for me, but I hoped that you would get it from her."

She did not give Wayne her reasons, any more than she had Steena. Yet she hoped he would take it as a natural enough request, too, without asking her why she asked it of him.

He said, "I'll do that—and thank you, my dear." If he thought it a strange request, he did not show that he did, unless by that odd little twist of his handsome mouth. Undoubtedly he did know her reason. She wanted him to see Steena again. She hoped he would again be friends with her, more than friends, maybe.

Of course Wayne would not ask Steena to give back the ring. He would ask her, rather, to wear it. Why not? He had known all along that Steena Winters would make him a more fitting wife than Miss Elizabeth Lane. He knew that if Tibby had not loved him that Steena had. He had never been fooled by her cleverness, not even by that clipping she had sent him. However, all that was in the future, hazy, problematical, depending upon this war in which Wayne would be engaged, having accepted a position in Washington, upon fate, which no one can predict.

Business Women's Club Hears Talk On Defense

Mrs. F. E. Barnhill Speaks During Meeting

Mrs. F. E. Barnhill presented a fine paper on Civilian Defense Thursday at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club in the club rooms of Masonic temple.

Her timely subject was "Defense on Main Street" and dealt with the various courses that home-town people are taking to prepare for any coming emergency and for the improvement of our lives in peace time.

She discussed the courses available for women, the nutrition course, which she mentioned as of inestimable value to the health program; first aid courses, the use of this knowledge saving lives and preventing many accidents; and home nursing courses, of great help in cases of illness in our home or in homes of others and in war-time epidemics when there are too few nurses to supply the need.

Concluding, Mrs. Barnhill said, "One of the most interesting things about the response to the call for volunteers is that along with our patriotism there is evidence of a deep and increasing desire on the part of these for adult education. We want to learn to help others and ourselves to live more fully and profitably. Working together and studying together has unified us and help us to recognize abilities in people outside our own small groups or cliques."

"We are no longer exclusively a complacent, pleasure-loving nation, but we have become overnight an alert one."

Mrs. Joe Work, club president, conducted the short business meeting during which plans were made for the installation of officers at the next meeting, June 25. Yearly reports will be made also at this meeting, which will be the last regular session until September.

Benevolent Association
Miss Clara Southward, case worker, announced that the surplus winter clothing donated in May had been placed in moth-proof storage until Fall when it would be distributed. May donors of clothing and household articles numbered 30. Miss Southward's report was read at the June meeting held recently in the city cottage.

During the month prepared food was donated by the Presbyterian church and the Business and Professional Women's club. Two clients donated sales tax stamps which they had collected for the association. Eighty-six families were given help; 78 families, clothing, and 24 families had a share of donated food; 13 families were on the milk list.

She listed needs of the association as mattresses, child's bed, chairs, a trunk, ironing board, dishes, pans and kettles.

Christ Lutheran Society
Ladies' society of Christ Lutheran church enjoyed a splendid meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. Adam List of Williamsport, 34 members and guests gathering for the occasion. The Rev. George L. Troutman conducted the session, "The Child in the Home" was the missionary topic of the month read by Mrs. Harry Kern and discussed by the Rev. Mr. Troutman.

The next meeting, Sunday, July 12, will be at the church with Mrs. Harry Kern, Mrs. Paul Thompson and Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel in charge of the lunch arrangements. The interesting program opened with a piano duet by Mrs. Kern and Ruth Troutman; piano solo, Mrs. Thompson; reading, Miss Helen Margaret Kern; piano solo, Jimmy Dunn; reading, Miss Doris Hulise; violin solo, Elayne Baker; piano solo, Carolyn Dunn; piano solo, Ruth Troutman; recitation, Jimmy Dunn, and group singing of "America."

Mrs. List, the hostess, was assisted in serving a delightful lunch by Mrs. George List, co-hostess.

Bridge Club
Mrs. Omar Creighton, Atlanta, was hostess to the members of her bridge club Thursday with Miss Mary Martha Hamman asked as a substitute player. Club members present were Mrs. McKinley Kirkpatrick, Washington C. H., Mrs. Paul Peck, Mrs. Ward Dean, Mrs. Van Meter Hulise, Mrs. John Farmers Jr., Mrs. Charles Drake, Mrs. George McGhee, Mrs. Pearl Ater, Mrs. George Betts, Mrs. Lealie Canup and Mrs. Wendell Evans.

During a brief business session, Mrs. Farmer was elected chairman

NEARLY IN TROUBLE
Producer Phillips H. Lord got a fan letter from a Connecticut druggist this week that told him he almost landed in prison because he listened to a Monday night broadcast of "Counter-Spy" over the Blue network. Seemed he got a phone call from a customer during the broadcast and didn't tune his radio down. When the customer asked if he carried a specific item, the druggist asked him to hold the wire while he looked. The customer held on for one minute, then hung up and phoned the police. The police arrived in a double rush and searched the store for spies. Seems the telephone mouthpiece had been near enough to the radio to catch all the suspicious spy chatter being delivered by the radio performers, and the listener thought the "Counter-Spy" dialogue was a real-life plot!

RADIO BRIEFS
Lum and Abner draw the most coveted times in radio when their program shifts to Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday on June 29. They'll hit the east at 10 p. m., the midwest at 9, long considered the top spots on the air.

Vaughn Monroe has made some changes in his band set-up. Newcomers are Joe Connie on trombone, Billy Marshall on trumpet and a new 17-year-old discovery Alvin Stoller, on drums.

There's a possibility that Dorothy Kilgallen may interview her own husband on her "Voice of Broadway" program heard Tuesday nights via CBS. He is Richard Kollmar, radio actor, and co-producer of the latest Broadway hit, "By Jupiter."

Music comes from oddly assorted sources, according to Andre Kostelanetz. As an example, he cites Scarlatti's "Cat's Fugue," which actually is based on the notes struck by the composer's cat in a stroll along the keyboard of a harpsichord!

Joan Edwards, of "Your Hit Parade," says most Nazi big shots remind her of horse doctors. "After all, they think they're veterinarians," she explains.

Freddy Martin's prediction that after the Fall election, Congressmen who took X cards in the gas rationing will be X-Congressmen.

WPB estimates that between 40 and 50 million pounds of wool will be saved by cutting the cuffs from men's and boys' trousers and other changes in war tailoring.

BEN HOGAN AND DEMARET FACE CAPABLE FOES

TOLEDO, June 12—The line-up of the star-studded eighth annual Inverness invitational was headed by the duo of Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret this morning but the standings were due for a jolt as the leaders faced second-placers Henry Picard and Sam Byrd in today's round.

Sharpest putter so far was Lawson Little who stroked seven birdies. With Partner Lloyd Mangrum, who carded two birdies, the 1940 National Open champion had the best-ball count of 62, 1-up over host Pro Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson.

In yesterday's round, Picard-Byrd defeated Herman Keiser and Chandler Harper, who carded a 68, 3 down. Hogan-Demaret bested Dutch Harrison and Denny Shute, 4 down, the latter carding a 69.

Horton Smith-Chick Harbert, and Jimmy Hines-Herman Barron were even with the board, with 67's.

CRABTREE GOES BACK TO CARDS TO UTILITY JOB

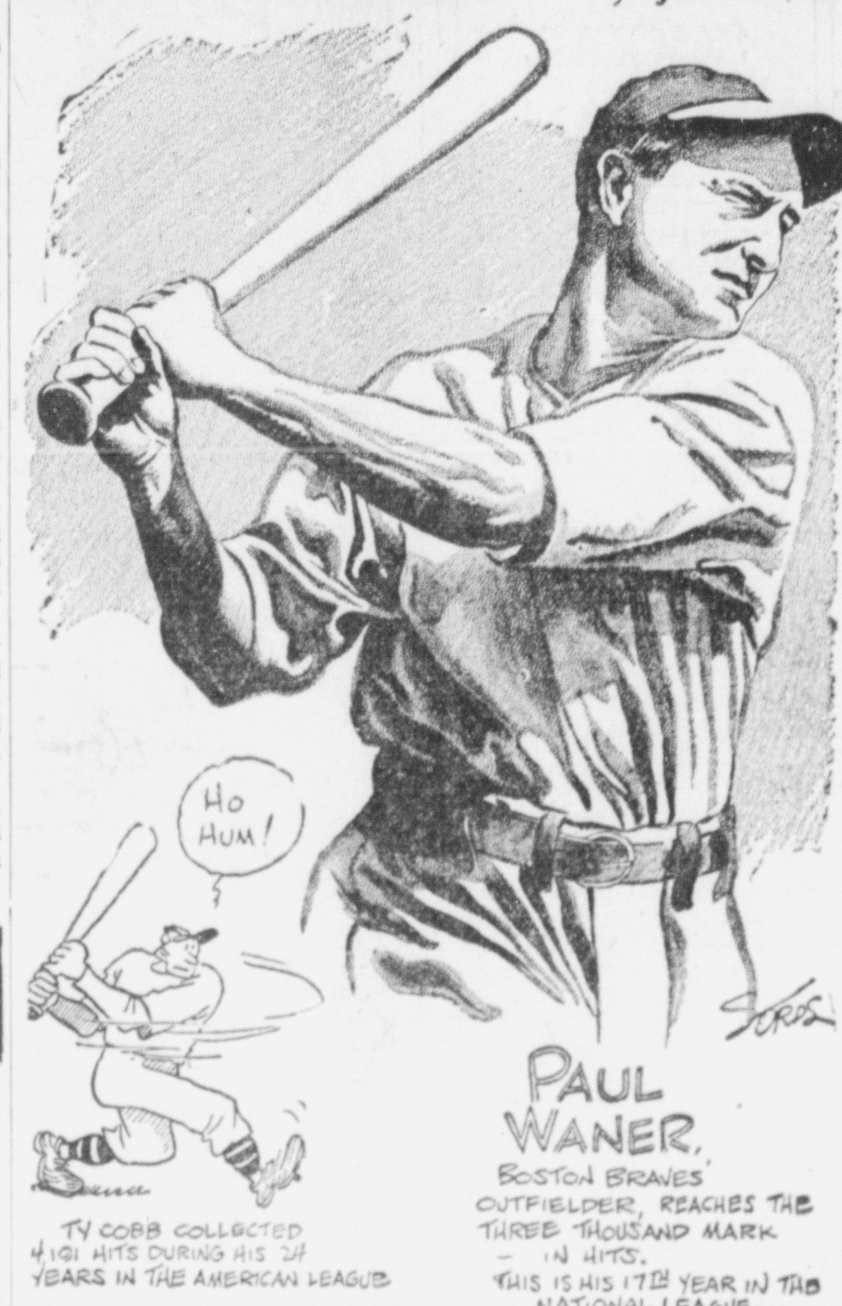

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 12—Estel Crabtree, pride of Nelsonville, O., today was headed back for duty with the St. Louis Cardinals following a three week sojourn at the helm of the heretofore hapless Rochester Red Wings.

Fate once again stepped in and jeopardized Crabby's managerial career, and ill health caused him to call it quits as a manager and re-assume his role of coach-utility outfielder with the Cardinals.

Back in 1940, the reins of the Wings were turned over to the likeable luminary who had won his way into the hearts of Rochester fans by scintillating outfield performances for eight years, but ill health caused him to reject the bid. His ailment at that time cost him a kidney.

In his stead, Ray Hayworth, veteran receiver formerly with the Detroit Tigers and now a coach with the Cards, will take over and try to pull the Wings out of their cellar berth. Crabby had succeeded in partially snapping the club out of the doldrums and had

Jim Moorehead Goes To Red Park For Workout Before Bill McKechnie

Jim Moorehead, Circleville high school athlete, was in Cincinnati Thursday trying out as a pitcher with the Cincinnati Reds. Young Moorehead is a right hander. Thirty-eight youths who aspire to professional baseball careers appeared at Crosley field and were given plenty of attention by Bill McKechnie, manager of the Reds, and by Coaches Ray Blades and Hank Gowdy.

Since the Reds had an off day, the youths were given tips to correct their faults and received much instruction from the Red chiefs and several of the veteran ball players.

Whether Moorehead will be offered a chance with a team of lower classification is not yet known.

200 ATHLETES READY TO SEEK N. C. A. A. HONORS

LINCOLN, Nebr., June 12—The track was pronounced "lightning fast," the 200 entered athletes were colored in the proverbial pink and by sundown today the truth of both statements should become apparent in the annual NCAA championships.

The meet starts at 6:30 p. m. in the University of Nebraska's Memorial stadium and the finals will be run off at the same hour tomorrow.

Southern California, with its lineup of 17 performers — the largest squad among the 49 schools represented — ruled a heavy favorite to make off with its eighth consecutive team title.

The war made a late appearance in the schedules. A mile relay has been added to Saturday's program, it was announced today, in which a squad from the Great Lakes Naval training station will compete against picked college teams.

But the spotlight will remain focused on the sparkling array of nine defending champions entered. This group includes Barney Ewell, Penn State, both dashes; Leslie MacMillen, N. Y. U., mile; Bob Wright, Ohio State, both hurdles; Al Blozis, Georgetown, shot put; Campbell Kane, Indiana, 880; Hubert Kerns, Southern California, 440, and Harold Hunt, Nebraska, pole vault.

brought them up from a remote position in the cellar to a place where the team is just one game from seventh place and "moving fast."

The change becomes effective immediately and is made with the complete sanction and approval of Branch Rickey, czar of the Cards chain gang.

BOSTON, INDIAN TEAMS VICTORS.

Small Part Of Yankee Lead Slashed; Cubs' Ace Winner Again

NEW YORK, June 12—The Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians made hay while the Yankees idled, and today had nudged up just a little closer to the high-flying pace-setters in the American league pennant race.

The Red Sox turned in their fifth victory in a row yesterday and the Indians completed a sweep of the Senator series, with the result that the Sox now hold down second place 9½ games behind the postponed Yankees and the Indians are a half game farther back.

That doesn't put the Red Sox and Indians much closer, but a game isn't to be scorned now at a time when the Yankees persistently pull farther and farther ahead. Enough half games picked up here and there could bring about a race yet before the Yankees get so far in front that it will be all over.

The Red Sox spotted the St. Louis Browns five runs, then came on to win their game, 8 to 7, when Jim Tabor singled Lou Finney home with the winning mark in the ninth.

The Browns' attack included a two-run homer by George McQuinn; then a three-run homer by Frank Hayes, followed by a one-run homer by Tony Criscola, despite all of which the Sox kept plugging until they sewed it up.

The Indians won their game from the Senators, 8 to 6, with a four-run blast in the ninth, which swept the series and gave the Indians a half game edge over Detroit in the tussle for third place, as only two games were placed in the circuit.

Claude Passeau turned in his seventh straight victory for the Chicago Cubs in the only National league game beating the Philadelphia Phillies, 7 to 1.

It was Passeau's ninth win of the season and he allowed only five hits, two of them coming in the second inning when the Phils scored their only run.

Crop Reporters Busy Checking Farms for AAA Rule Compliance

35 SERVING AS AIDES IN UNCLE SAM'S PROGRAM

Applications To Be Sent To State Office Under New Quota System

PAYMENT TO BE DECIDED

Flood Of Work For State Office Broken Up Under Revised Operation

County wide check on agricultural war production under the AAA farm program got under way this week with 35 farm reporters in the area contacting all farmers who come under the 1942 compliance program. The check is a yearly one in which farmers who wish to participate in the government AAA payments are contacted and a complete summary of their production recorded for determination of their respective payments.

Under a new plan put into effect this year applications for AAA payments will be sent into the state office each month under a quota system. In the past all the applications were sent together thus piling the work on state officials. During July the local office will submit 250 applications August 338, September 350 and October 350.

The 35 farm reporters are stationed in each of the county townships and following completion of planting by a farmer they check his acreage for compliance with AAA rulings. Following this the report is forwarded to the state committee which makes out the government checks for those participating.

Reporters in Pickaway county are:

Circleville township: A. J. Dunkel.

Darby township: Floyd Lugenbeel, William Near and Pearl Neff.

Harrison township: Ralph Stevenson, Thomas Purcell and Paul Kuhlwein.

Deercreek township: Gordon Rini and William Hulse.

Jackson township: Fred Hulse, Henry Butt and Harry Kern.

Madison township: Archie Peters.

Monroe township: William Schleich, Charles Hostler and Ray Hanawalt.

Muhlenberg township: Jesse Pitt and Cecil Reid.

ROY ROGERS OF CINEMA FAME VISITS IN CITY

Roy Rogers, famed cowboy actor who thrills millions of children with his feats on the screen, was an unexpected visitor in Circleville Thursday afternoon. The cowboy also had his pony along with him on a tour to Pittsburgh. Question of gasoline rationing in Pennsylvania caused the actor to stop here and telephone representatives in Pittsburgh as to the supply of fuel.

Several local residents had an opportunity to talk with him.

RUOFF DIVORCE GRANTED

A divorce decree, signed by Judge Meeker Terwilliger, was filed in common pleas court Friday in favor of Della K. Ruoff of Darby township against Paul J. Ruoff. Neglect of duty was charged.

Blitzed T. B. Germ

Dr. Florence J. Seibert of the University of Pennsylvania was awarded the 1942 Frances P. Garvan Medal by the American Chemical Society for distinguished work on the chemistry of tuberculosis. She isolated the active principle of tuberculin and prepared the International Standard Tuberculin.

NEW HOLLAND'S RATION BOARD RESIGNS TASKS

Resignation of Dudley Roth as head of the New Holland sugar rationing board was announced Friday by George McDowell, county head of the program. The resignation has been accepted by the New Holland mayor who also announced receipt of resignations from all members of the rationing staff. As yet no definite action has been taken on these forms.

It is possible that the entire New Holland board will be eliminated with residents in that area being sent to the Williamsport board for their rationing quotas.

This makes the second county agency to retire and Mr. McDowell is still awaiting word from the state department on a proposed centralization of all county boards into one Circleville board. The previous board to resign was the one in Saltcreek township with those persons being handled by the local rationers.

Sugar for canning is still being rationed by the various boards with a huge volume of certificates reported to be issued every day.

BUCKEYE BOYS' STATE DOORS OPEN SATURDAY

Walter Leist, Circleville high school pupil, will be one of 700 Ohio boys to attend the annual American Legion Boy's State to be staged at Ohio Wesleyan university June 13 to 23.

The affair which begins Saturday has been planned by Legion officials with the program to be similar to those held in previous years.

All members of the state will be divided into three counties each containing five cities arranged in the mock government. Monnett Hall will be the general headquarters for the event with other school buildings to be used as quarters for the supreme court, state patrol, political campaign headquarters and general assembly.

The program and supervision of the group has been carefully planned by state officials and members of the various cities sending delegates, in an effort to give the youths a sample of how our state and local governing agencies operate.

MANY CHURCHES IN COUNTY PLAN CHILDREN RITES

Churches throughout Pickaway county are planning Children's Day services in conjunction with their Sunday programs this week. Among those to announce programs are the Ashville U. B. church Sunday evening and the Robtown church Sunday evening, June 21.

Plans in the Stoutsville area will be carried out at the St. Paul Evangelical church Sunday at 8 p. m.

An interesting event for the observance is being arranged by Christ church and will be given at the church Sunday at 8 p. m.

The public has been invited to attend this program that will consist of music, recitations and the pageant, "The Mountain of Vision" with members of the primary department playing the roles. Those who will take part in the event are Mary Kimmel, Betty Kimmel, Martha Barthelmas, Judith List, George List, Marion Rhoades, Gladys Hulse, Bobby List, Wayne Rhoades, Raymond Hulse, Carol Kern, Rosemary Barthelmas, Jean Barthelmas, Norma Hulse, Bobby Hulse, Billy Hulse, Danny Hulse, Phyllis Barthelmas, Doris Hulse, Jane Hulse, Ruth Hulse, Jean List Thompson, Vera Rhoades and Betty Hulse.

The annual observance of Children's Day at the Lockbourne Methodist church will be held at the close of the Sunday school classes this week. The Rev. Ernest Bartlett states that "this is a beautiful observance in recognition of the child life of the church and the study of their development through Christian education with the ultimate goal being a college education for all."

The Children's Day offering will be a contribution to the Methodist Student Loan Fund which has been established to aid Methodist students in their college work. A baptismal service for children will also be featured in our program.
